TOWN TALK.

Aimee at Redmond's grand opera house to-night.

The McGary robbery case comes up for consideration in the Police Court to-day.

Bishop Gillespie will lecture at the Episcopal chapel, Coopersville, Wednesday evening.

A hop will be given at the Armory to-night under the auspices of the Ladies' Dancing Club.

An investigation is to be had in the case of the freight-train collision at Monticello, Thursday.

Contractor Rens hopes to have the West Park street improvement completed before winter sets in.

T. J. O'Brien, J. H. Campbell and D. D. & W. H. Hughes will occupy rooms in the new Aldrich block.

Hon. H. R. Gass, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, is in the city, stopping at the Morton.

The executive committee of the Law and Order League will meet at the Eagle hotel to-morrow evening.

The December term of the Superior Court commences to-day. The criminal cases will receive first attention.

"Siberia" had another good house at Powers' Saturday night. The company has been booked to appear here again next year.

The Humane Society have made an appeal through their president, Rev. Charles Finlimer, for funds to continue their work.

Petty thieves are meeting with flattering success on the "hill." One resident had twenty Plymouth Rocks stolen Friday night.

It is stated upon good authority that the preliminary survey of the proposed road between this city and Muskegon has been completed.

The regular monthly meeting of the Chautauque Circle will be held in Superintendent Mitchell's office to-morrow evening at 7 o'clock.

The Electric Time Company are making preparations to put up a line of two hundred clocks to illustrate their system of furnishing uniform time.

Mrs. J. J. Van Leuven and Master Worth have returned from their visit with friends in Brighton. Mrs. J. O. Fonda, mother of Mrs. Van Leuven, returned with them to spend a few days in the city.

Patrick Foley, who was convicted in the Circuit Court last week of the burglary of a farmer's house at Grandville, was sentenced by Judge Montgomery on Saturday to two years of hard labor at Jackson.

Addie McGraw, who was convicted in the police court on Friday of keeping a house of ill-fame, has appealed her case to the Superior Court. The appeal bond is signed by Geo. J. Walker and Frank Bolter.

Merchants should make it a point to have some one assume the responsibility of seeing that their store doors are made secure at night. There is scarcely a night but one or two stores are found open by the police.

The Thalia Club repeated "Shakespeare's Watercure" in their theatre in Mr. C. B. Judd's residence on Saturday evening. There was a large attendance, all of whom were well pleased and pronounced the production a flattering success.

Saturday afternoon a boy, while playing in Berkley & Gay's inner yard, found a package of deeds and mortgages which were stolen from the residence of Geo. M. Miller near Lisbon about two weeks ago. The boy turned the papers over to Supt. Perry.

A man named Mart Haywood, a wealthy lumberman, who resides at Casnovia, came into town Saturday, got drunk, and fell into the hands of the fakers, who did him up for $500. He was arrested and spent Sunday with the sheriff. The fakers are getting too bold and should be run out of town.

"Reform is Needed."

In another column mention is made of a lumberman from Casnovia, while drunk, being fleeced out of nearly five hundred dollars. This happened on Summit street. And it is no startling announcement to say that it was done by confidence men. The fakers, who are well-known to the police and men about town have become entirely too bold of late, and it is about time to devise some plan whereby unsophisticated countrymen could come to town without going home mourning the loss of hard earned dollars. They do not openly rob, but they resort to "games and cunning schemes" in which their victims are entirely ignorant, and are encouraged to take a hand to their sorrow. At present there is no ordinance or statute under which these confidence operators can be convicted. The police, however, can arrest them as vagrants and they should make an example by arresting every one of them who hang about the streets, evidence prima facie, that they have no visible occupation, and persist in grinding them through this process until the town is rid of them. The fakers should be made to go.

Spiritualistic.

"The Possibilities of Human Life on this Planet," was the subject discussed by Professor Howe at Since Hall last evening. An unusually large audience was in attendance and listened to the professor's remarks with rapt attention. He began by giving a remarkable vision which he had enjoyed in the midst of his slumbers, and its realistic interpretation by following events, thus showing by modern example, that the views of Daniel and others of the sacred writers were not exceeding the limits of the possible in their writings. He then gave an instance of absent-mindedness which had occurred to him at a funeral, in which he was recalled to himself by the whistle of a boy. Thus explaining the possible wandering of the mind or spirit, the professor went on to illustrate the peculiar doctrines of the sect to which he belongs.

For a Public-Spirited Druggist.

The "Old Gentleman" of The Times justly complains because he is unable to get into a drug store after 10 o'clock at night to get a remedy for his aching bones. It is strange some one of the druggists in the central part of the town is not enterprising enough to conduct his establishment so that the public may be accommodated at any hour of the night. It would not only be a great convenience to the residents but also to the travelling public who pour into the city all hours of the night.

Mr. Edward Arnold's new volume of poems is to be entitled, "The Heart of Death."

AMUSEMENTS.

The "Georgia Wonder" at Redmond's—This Week's Attractions.

Considering the weather there was a good-sized audience at the theater last night to see the wonderful girl from Georgia. Some of her experiments are marvelous, much more so in the fact that even the performer herself is unable to explain how she accomplishes them. The most remarkable of her experiments are those with the billiard cue and the chair. The fact that she was able to resist the combined force of ten men, in their efforts to place an ordinary chair upon the floor, demonstrated beyond question the claims of her managers. In this experiment she merely placed the palm of one hand against the front of the chair and the other hand at the back of it, held it about two feet above the stage and invited ten gentlemen to place it upon the floor. They tried hard, scrambled upon each other's backs and brought all the weight they could summon to bring it down, but they could not "budge" it. It was an interesting performance, and commendatory in so much as everything was done as advertised. So far no one has been able to explain from whence comes the marvelous power of the "Georgia Wonder."

AIMEE TO-NIGHT.

Redmond's Opera House should be well filled to-night, the occasion being the first appearance of Mlle Aimee in this city. She has been presenting her new comedy in Chicago this week and the papers there have been unanimous in their praise of the play and company. The following is from the News Letter:

Aimee's company is uniformly good, but Mr. Newton Chisnell as Colonel Henry Porter, the manager of the Music Hall, is an especially well considered and clever piece of work. As for Aimee herself, it would be impossible to say too much in praise of her performance. No one cared for the development of the plot or smartness of the dialogue so long as she was on the stage; her every movement was full of life and grace. She jumped, she danced, and she ogled, and looked "pretty as a picture," which she gave in the style which she has made her own.

Her English is very good, too good, in fact, for the part. Aimee has evidently been saving herself for a surprise. To think that during all these years she has been hiding from the public her abilities as an English-speaking actress! She was acceptable enough in an opera bouffe, but her real triumph will be made in the line she has now chosen.

EDWIN THORNE.

This eminent actor, supported by a strong company, appears at Powers' Opera House Wednesday and Thursday evenings. The title of the play, "The Black Flag," gets its significance in the fact that when a prisoner escapes from the Portland prison, England, a black flag is hoisted. The play has for the past two years been presented only in the larger cities, this being the first season in which the smaller cities have been touched. This fact alone establishes the fact that it is full of merit.

AN INTERESTING CASE

To be Tried in the Kent Circuit Court Beginning To-day.

A criminal case of more than unusual interest is on call for to-day in the Circuit Court. The case is that of the People vs. Matthew Millard on a charge of venue from the Ionia circuit, in which the defendant is charged with the murder of his wife. Matthew Millard is a wealthy farmer of North Plains, Ionia county, where he has resided for many years, raised a large family and lived to see them settled near him upon good estate. Several things during the later years have transpired to show there was not the most perfect harmony existing in the family circle; and troubles came up there and in the church at Palo, of which Mr. Millard, Sr., was a member. Several months since the wife and mother, as it was supposed, died. Some weeks passed when circumstances happened aroused the suspicions of certain members of the family and it began to be noised among them that perhaps the mother's death did not result from natural causes. The more they thought upon the subject the deeper grew their convictions. The body was exhumed, was sent to Ann Arbor to be examined, when the medical experts found arsenic in the stomach of the deceased. Upon these facts being made known, Mr. Millard was at once arrested upon the charge of murder, he being accused of administering the poison for mercenary motives. The case was tried in the Ionia Circuit Court, when the jury disagreed. It was then carried to the Supreme Court, who remanded it to the Kent Circuit.

'ALF AND 'ALF.

An Amusing Scene in a Down Town Restaurant.

He was tall and lank. His face wore the appearance of along jaunty as he made a break into the Grand Union Cafe, and took a seat at the second table, facing the door. No sooner was he seated than he commenced thumping on the table, and to keep him quiet three waiters rushed to his rescue. The following conversation took place:

"Got any 'laters?"

"Yes."

"Bring me on enough for a good meal—got any beefsteak?"

"Yes."

"Bring me a good chunk, rare done."

The waiter who was taking the order started away when he called her back by more thumping and said: "Got any coffee?" On receiving an affirmative reply he ordered some and leaned forward to await its coming. He was uneasy and to himself muttered:

"It takes 'em a long time to cook that steak. I presume when I get it 'twill be some warmed-over stuff."

His order came and he lifted up his carpet-bag resting by his side and took out two mammoth slices of bread and dumped a dozen doughnuts on the table. His next move was to spread all his butter on his meat and, cutting off a piece two inches square, commenced chewing. He licked his chops—"Gosh this is pretty good. Darned night better'n I thought 'twould be." He ate all his meat and all his bread, but had three doughnuts left. Another cup of coffee washed them down and a crowd followed him out after he paid his bill. The expression on the cashier's face told that 'alf and 'alf customers are not welcome.

"THE SYMPATHY OF RELIGIONS."

Rev. Henry Powers' Discourse at the Opera House Last Evening.

A fair-sized audience listened to the lecture of Rev. Henry Powers last evening upon "The sympathy of religions." In our comparisons of the various religions of the world we should be careful not to put the noble side of our religion against the ignominious side of another. Doubtless the Christian religion stands highest thus far in moral results of all the religions of the past, yet the slave-trader belongs to the Christian era as well as the saint. If we say Christianity was not truly represented in the slave trade we must admit that Buddhism is not to be judged merely by the prostrations of its ignominious devotees. You may test each religion by its best or its worst ideal, by its high water-mark of virtue or its low water-mark of vice. Christianity is not the same in England as in America; in America as in Ethiopia, in South America as in China, in Thibet, in Ceylon, nor Mohammedanism in Turkey and in Persia. We have no right to pluck the best fruit from one tree, the worst from another and then say a tree is known by its fruits. All religions show the same aim, the same symbols, the same weaknesses, the same aspirations. If we consider their unities there is but one religion under many forms, whose essential creed is the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. To say that nations worship different Gods is like saying they are restrained by different laws. The names differ, as also does the amount of light diffused to different parts of the earth; but the sun is the same, and so is God. I believe the time will come when we will have, in all our churches, hymns and prayers and maxims gathered from all the pious writers of the ages; that these will form the magnificent liturgy of the human race, in the use of which every human soul may unite. In justification of this belief Rev. Powers read characteristic sentences contained in the sacred books of all the religions of the world. In these also he proved the proposition that every nation believes in or has believed in a creator and governor of the world in whom devout souls recognize a father, also, that every nation believes in immortality; that every nation recognizes in its religious precepts the brotherhood of man. The world's great religions all correspond in what is commonly supposed to be a peculiarity of the Christian religion, namely, the incarnation of a God-man. The main difference between these beliefs is the fact that each one fills some blank space in its creed with the name of a different teacher. In summing up he quoted a French divine as follows: "There never has been in the world but one religion; which is the aspiration of man toward the infinite." The word Christian is synonymous with the best religion, with civilization and progress. We look for something better. All of truth has not yet been revealed. A higher morality will give a higher conception of Christianity and of God.

EDUCATIONAL MATTERS.

Various Subjects Discussed and Passed Upon by the Board.

The Board of Education met on Saturday evening and transacted considerable business. A proposition was received from the Haney Manufacturing Company, with respect to furnishing seats for the balance of the year, and was referred to the Committee on Buildings. The report of the Committee on Teachers, recommending the temporary employment of certain teachers for the high school, was carried. The Committee on Schools reported adversely to changing the school hours in the high school building. Carried. The Library Committee recommended that the work of binding books for the library be given to P. R. Ellis, he being the lowest bidder. Laid on the table. The Committee on Claims and Accounts recommended that the claim of J. D. Boland & Co. be allowed. The claim was for $337 for damages arising from a change of plans in the Plainfield avenue school building. Forty dollars were deducted for expenses incurred by the Board, on account of the building not being completed as per contract, and the report accepted.

The committee on buildings were authorized to distribute $51,000 worth of insurance on the various school buildings, and that the rate be fixed at one per cent. on brick buildings and 1 1/4 per cent. on frame buildings. Storm sheds were ordered placed on different school buildings. The cost of the proposed school building on Straight street was estimated at $14,938, for an eight-room building, plans were submitted and consideration of the matter was postponed until the next meeting. The special committee on teachers reported that steps had been taken to open a night school, and teachers appointed for the same. Adopted.

James Van Dorn was appointed janitor of the library at a salary of $11 per month. Superintendent Mitchell reported that Trust Officer Groff performed his duties very satisfactorily and that the schools were in better condition than ever before. The matter of extending the spring vacation was referred to the committee on schools. The rule regarding resolutions was altered so that all reports and resolutions must be reduced to writing before presented. Richards & Boynton's claim was referred to committee on claims and accounts with instructions to report at next meeting. Adjourned.

BURGLARY CASES.

A Considerable Number of Suspicious Tools.

The case of Edward Johnson and William Madden, charged with burglarizing Strahan's clothing store on West Bridge street, came up for trial in the Police Court Saturday morning. The testimony for the prosecution showed that burglars' tools were found in Johnson's room the day after the burglary, and that on the day previous he had bought a dark lantern at Foster, Stevens & Co.'s. There were also some carpenter's tools found on Johnson's premises. Chief Detective Moran found a tin tube half an inch in diameter and six inches long in the basement of Strahan's store the day after the burglary. This tube Mr. Moran placed with the other tools found in Johnson's room. Johnson was brought to the detective's office and asked to explain what he had used the things in his apartments for. When asked what he used the tube for he stated that he used it to blow the fire in his house. Mr. Moran also testified further that the holes in the basement door corresponded with the bits found in Johnson's possession. The examination will be continued this afternoon at 3 o'clock.

Artificial Light.

In these days of progress there is a demand for better means of illumination than ever before. The dazzling brilliancy of the electric light makes our common kerosene lamps as dim as tallow dips in the comparison. This demand has been fully met by the introduction of the Sun Lamps. They are necessarily made of metal because the draft or chimney extends down through the center of the lamp. The wicks are five inches wide and give a light of forty-five candle power, equal to three gas burners. These lamps were brought out at the close of last season, but the price was so high—$6 each—but few were sold. Owing to the enormous demand which has sprung up, they are now produced at a price within the reach of all, and sold for $3 in brass and $3.50 in nickel, complete with ten-inch porcelain shade. To persons troubled with weak eyes or those who desire to preserve their eyesight by means of a good light, the Sun Lamp will prove a blessing.

The New Styles of Hanging Lamps are made of a gold color solid bronze metal, and trimmed with cut glass prisms and decorated shades. The dome-shaped shades look the best, but we imagine the angle of reflection from the cone shape is best for throwing light down. These lamps are also much cheaper than last year. They are now sold at from $5 to $7 each. Fine table lamps are furnished with duplex or two-wick burners, giving double the light of the single wick burners. There are many styles of these lamps on exhibition, including solid bronze and the popular hammered brass. For information received thanks are due Messrs. H. Leonard & Sons, importers, 16 Monroe street.
